

What's in your shed?

4 things you should know about hazards that may be lurking in your home

If you're not using it ... — Any unused household products that contain corrosive, toxic, ignitable or reactive ingredients are considered to be household hazardous waste.

Take an inventory — Over time, many households accumulate such products, including paints, pesticides, solvents, cleaners, aerosol cans and batteries, as well as a number of fuels and oils.

Take action — Properly disposing of household hazardous waste greatly reduces health risks within your home while protecting the environment.

It's easy — Chesterfield County offers free disposal services for a variety of household hazardous wastes at:

- Northern Area Convenience Center 3200 Warbro Road (off Hull Street or Genito roads)
- Southern Area Convenience Center 6700 Landfill Road (turn by United Rental on Iron Bridge Road)

For more information about household hazardous waste, including the proper way to dispose of such items, call Chesterfield County Waste and Resource Recovery at (804) 748-1297 or visit chesterfield.gov
